CRITIQUE OF OPERATIONS FAMILIARIZATION COURSE NO. 21

1. Purpose of Student Critique. Since course development is a continuous process, the purpose of the student critique is to obtain whatever constructive suggestions you may be able to give for improvements in the course. If your experience with the Clandestine Services has been brief or limited in scope, you may feel that you have little basis for judging the content of instruction. On the other hand, we are here to make you better qualified to carry out your Agency assignments, and as a student on the "receiving end" of the instruction, you should be able to judge the adequacy of the instructional approach being used.

2. Course Objectives. As you fill out your critique please keep in mind the objectives of the Operations Familiarization Course: To provide familiarization with

- a. the clandestine methods and techniques used by the field case officer,
- b. the operational programs of the Clandestine Services,
- c. the management of operation,
- d. reporting,
- e. and the analysis and planning of clandestine operations.

3. Your Critique. Criticism is constructive only when it is specific. Moreover, for any phase judged to need improvement, criticism is most beneficial when it suggests a way for improvement. If there are aspects of the training which you feel are in particular need of improvement from an instructional point of view, be specific in indicating what made the elements weak and give your recommendations for improving them. If you wish to single out any elements as being particularly praiseworthy, please be specific in indicating what made each element of unusual instructional value.

4. The following constitute the major blocks of instruction that you have received. You may comment on them in general or you may wish to single out specific elements for remarks.

- a. Clandestine Tradecraft
- b. Operations Management
- c. Reporting
- d. Espionage
- e. Counter Intelligence
- f. Covert Action Operations

5. Please write any comments you may have on a blank sheet(s) of paper and attach to this form. These should be turned in on the final day of the course.
